

Project Proposal (FMP)

Rationale:

During this year, I had the chance to learn many new techniques and mediums and also to develop my skills further. This includes the advertisement project in which I produced digital posters using editing software such as Photoshop, which was one of my weak points and a challenging assignment, but I improved my digital skills and overcame this “obstacle”. The same was for the film project and the essay which were completely new to me, and I had to go through these experiences that I was nervous about, in the beginning but with research and the teacher’s guidance I fulfilled these tasks without much struggle. I also had the chance to practice and experiment my strengths such as painting and sketching (painting onto cyanotype and drawing posters) which I enjoyed as I feel confident about them and are, also, my hobbies and I always want to explore and improve them further. Therefore, for my FMP I would like to pursue with these techniques combined with a suitable concept.

Project Proposal:

As I have decided to go for the techniques of painting and sketching, therefore, the style that I would consider is classical, also because of my personal preferences. And as I have applied for BA Theology and Religion at university, so I will be creating an outcome based on religious or cultural references. This may include cultural differences, religions’ philosophy, traditions or coming up with something inspired by a typical religious art of a specific religion. I will start the project by working on the search for a satisfying and creative concept and then I will start generating ideas (mind maps, mood boards, research, etc...) and in order to evaluate them I will be making sketches so I can visually analyze them and see how they can be developed further. One of the topics that I have in my mind are Sufi art, which is a classical style of art within the Islamic religion. I reached this topic throughout my essay which was based on Sufism.

Evaluation Method:

I will be evaluating my work through self-reflection, teacher’s feedback and friends and family members’ feedback and opinions. Alongside these, my blog is going to be the main platform for this evaluation as I will have to post every stage in the making of my final piece and reflect and analyze it critically. This project proposal can be a helpful tool to remain in touch with what I am planning and aiming to do. However, the element that I feel will help me the most is going to be the sketches and drawings that I am planning to produce so I can compare and analyze the ideas and choose the more satisfying ones.

Exhibition Outcomes:

For the exhibition, as I am planning to create a painting, therefore, the outcome will be on a canvas. So, my plan is to simply hang the canvas on the wall or keep it on a stand. I can, also, consider to cut out the fabric from the canvas and frame it as I feel that placing the painting under the glass will make it look smoother.
